JUSTICE AND RIGHT

VOLUME XLVIII

GRAYLING, MICHIGAN, MAY 20, 1926

OSCAR P. SCHUMANN, Editor and Proprietor

NUMBER 20

WILLIAM CODY PASSES AWAY

William H. Cody passed away at his home in this city at 8:30 o'clock Friday morning, following a couple of months' illness. On April 26th he was taken to the University hospital at Ann Arbor, where it was found he was suffering with a tumor on the brain. There was no help for him and he returned home on May 3rd, gradually growing worse until the end came.

William Henry Cody was born in Grafton, Ohio, November 18, 1876. When he was two years old his parents moved to northern Michigan, claiming Ironton, Manvela, East Jordan, Boyceville and Elmira as their residences previous to coming to Grayling. On November 29th, 1895 Mr. Cody was united in marriage to Miss Emma Bonk of Gaylord and following their marriage they went to Elmira to reside with Mr. Cody's parents. To them two sons were born, Frank and William. He was a good man and was always willing and ready to turn out on any occasion, even locking his place of business when necessary.

He served as sheriff of Crawford county from 1914 to 1918, previous to that time serving as deputy sheriff under Sheriff Homer Benedict. He also served as under-sheriff during the administrations of Ernest P. Richardson and Peter F. Jorgenson. He was first elected sheriff in the year of 1914, assuming the duties of the office January 1, 1915. He made an enviable record as sheriff and in the year 1916 he was re-elected to serve another term. His tenure of office lasted right through the most trying and exacting days this country has every known.

Many will recall how it was that during the early days when the National Guard camped at the Hanson Military reservation that there were saloons and how it was that the pre-arrived from the regular army proceeded on the first day to run the town. They didn't get far, even tho they tried to convince our sheriff that he had no authority over them. Mr. Cody proceeded to fill up the jail with Uncle Sam's soldiers and later telephoned the General John P. Kirk and told him to come and get his men. Mr. Cody performed the duties of sheriff without fear or favor.

Following his retirement from the sheriff's office Mr. and Mrs. Cody leased the Hotel Burton which they had since operated.

Mr. Cody was a good sportsman. He loved fishing and hunting, and rarely a season passed that he did not bag his deer going with a party of friends to the upper peninsula. He was a charter member of the Grayling Knights of Columbus, No. 1182 and one of the organizers of the Loyal Order of Moose No. 1182. Also a member of Grayling Chapter Izaak Walton League and a veteran of the Spanish-American war.

The funeral of the deceased was held Monday morning with services at St. Mary's church at 9:00 o'clock, members of the various lodges joining in the funeral cortege and attending the services. Rev. Fr. Culligan's sermon was a most impressive one, the choir rendered the usual hymns during the funeral mass. The remains were taken to Gaylord for burial, where the parents of Mrs. Cody reside, a number of friends accompanying.

Besides his wife, the deceased is survived by his father, Joseph Cody of this city, one brother, Oliver of Detroit, and one sister, Mrs. Delia Rose Taylor of Tacoma, Wash.

OLD ROSCOMMON CO. RESIDENT PASSED AWAY

Mrs. Sarah Gallop Struble, mother of Mrs. Henry Heidemann, passed away at 11:40 p. m., May 12, 1926 at Higgins Lake, at the age of 75 years. Mrs. Struble was born January 28, 1851 at Hastings, England. At the age of five years she came with her father to this country, locating in Chicago.

On April 10, 1879 she was united in marriage to Dr. John Struble of Chicago, they coming to Roscommon county in 1903. Her husband died in 1910. The deceased is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Henry Heidemann; one son, Roy of California; three grandchildren, Ruth, Evelyn and Lee; three sisters, Mrs. Sophia Webb and Mrs. Minnie Hanson of Chicago, Mrs. Martha E. Good of Pasadena, California and two brothers, Wm. H. and Charles of Chicago, besides a host of relatives and friends who mourn their loss.

She had been ailing for some years and Saturday afternoon was stricken with apoplexy, never regaining consciousness. Wednesday, she peacefully slept away.

She was a beautiful Christian character from her early girlhood. —2 Timothy 4:7-8. Funeral services were held at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Heidemann, Rev. E. Dickert of Saginaw officiating. She was laid to rest beside her husband, at the old home-stand.

Dr. Vesper Shaffer and Mrs. Sophia Webb arrived Tuesday from Chicago and left after the funeral Saturday.

NOTICE
Sealed bids will be received by the undersigned for the construction of concrete sidewalks and cross walks in accordance with specifications on file in my office. Bids will be received up to and including June 7th, 1926. The right is reserved to reject any or all bids.

CHRIS JENSON,
Village Clerk.

GIVE SILVER TEA BENEFIT FOR MERCY HOSPITAL

The committee who had in charge the fourth entertainment for the Aid of Mercy hospital gave a Silver Tea last week Saturday afternoon at the Board of Trade club rooms which was very well attended. At five o'clock a chop suey dinner was served and at that time a number of articles were sold. These latter included a delicious frosted cake; a beautiful basket of flowers and a very handsome hand made bed spread. Numbers were given out and the lucky ones were Mrs. Robert Gillett who drew the cake; Mrs. Louis Herbison, the basket of flowers and Fred Alexander the bedspread. Later in the evening a dancing party was given. In all the committee netted the handsome sum of $188.00.

Mr. Alexander very generously gave back the quilt, which will be sold and the amount received added to the total sum. It was a very enjoyable affair from start to the close and a large crowd of citizens were given a very pleasant time.

The committee consisted of Mrs. Roy Barber, chairman; Mrs. Alexander, Mrs. Anstett; Mrs. Bailey; Mrs. Bates; Mrs. J. K. Hanson; Mrs. Dell Walt; Mrs. George McCullough; Mrs. Rose Pond; Mrs. Harold Rasmussen; Mrs. C. J. McCann; Mrs. Floyd McClain; Mrs. C. J. McCann; Mrs. J. C. Peterson and Mrs. John Edwards.

The committee asks us to extend to the public their appreciation and thanks to all those who assisted in the affair, and also to the public who so generously extended their patronage.

YOUNG COUPLE WED

St. Mary's church was the scene of a pretty wedding ceremony Tuesday morning when Miss Nellie Thayer of Detroit became the bride of Mr. John Huber of this city. Rev. Fr. Joseph Culligan performed the ceremony which took place at ten o'clock. The bride, who was attended by Miss Beatrice Trudo, was attired in a gown of Alice blue silk and wore a picture hat to match. Miss Trudo's costume was pea green silk and she wore a rose colored hat. Lawrence Trudo officiated as best man.

At twelve o'clock the bridal party and a few close friends enjoyed a chicken dinner at the "Try It" cafe. Mr. and Mrs. Huber have rented quarters in the George Miller home on Cedar street where they are at home to their friends.

Mr. Huber came to Grayling from Detroit the first of year purchasing the Roberts meat market, his bride coming to Grayling a few weeks ago. The young couple have made many warm friendships since coming here, and are extended congratulations and best wishes.

THE OLD ANGLER'S GRIEVANCE (By Ben East)

For fifty years I've fished AuSable's reaches,
And fished them fair with pole and bait,
I've never gone a-fishing out of season,
I've played a sportsman's game and played it straight.

I've never tried to stick and take my limit,
I've put back many a trout the law called good.
I've wet my hands and coaxed the hook out gently,
I've done things as I thought a sportsman should.

Last spring I started my fishing with another,
A joyous little grandson, just turned nine.
He trod the river's maze with me, untiring,
His love for woods and stream as great as mine.

And now the word has spread along the river,
Of a law, born in the cities it would seem,
That only flies will be allowed this season.
The man with bait must seek some other stream.

Well, I'm too old to make my habits over,
And the little lad's too young to whip a fly.
We've neither time nor funds for distant fishing,
Our fun we two must find on streams nearby.

So when this spring the doves mourn in the thickets
And everybody'd like to go and fish AuSable
I guess we two must stay at home and wish.

I've never held a grudge against the sportsman
Who speak of plunkers in a scornful tone.
I'd thought the stream was theirs and mine together,
But now I'm barred. The river's theirs alone.

I don't know why a law like this was needed,
We've fished as anglers should, the lad and I.
A fly the badge that tells a sportsman's mettle
'Twould seem to me poor rule to judge him by.

I don't see why the kind of lure he uses
Should let an angler in or bar him out.
I've always thought 'twas fishing fair that counted
And put a man's good character past doubt.

For 50 years I've fished AuSable's reaches,
And loved the game and loved the river, too!
But now it seems there's room for me no longer;
Old men like me and lads of 9 are through.

MAYOR GREEN ENTERS PRIMARY RACE

Ionian Executive Announces Candidacy For Governorship Wednesday

HUGE GATHERING CHEERS STATEMENT

Thousands of Visitors Throng City For Monster Celebration in His Honor

Ionian, May 19.—Hon. Fred W. Green, serving his fourteenth year as mayor of this city, today made formal announcement of his candidacy for the Republican nomination for governor at the September primaries. The announcement, which has been expected for some time in view of the fact that he has been a student of public affairs in Michigan, was greeted by a tremendous ovation.

MAYOR FRED W. GREEN

from the people of his home county who, without regards to party affiliations, were here by the thousands to take part in "Fred W. Green Day," staged by the citizens of Ionian county as a testimonial to his worth as a fellow citizen.

Added to this throng were hundreds of prominent men from every part of the state who journeyed to Ionian to assure Mayor Green of their support throughout what is expected to be the greatest primary fight in the history of Michigan. Addresses were made by Mayor John W. Smith and John S. Jaggers, Detroit, Hon. William Alden Smith and Arthur H. Vandenberg, of Grand Rapids, and many others. Mayor Smith declared that Wayne county would register a decided pro-Green verdict when the time came, an indication that the almost solid vote of Greenback in that county in the past was at last to be broken up.

The speech-making, which was held at the Ionian Free Fair grounds, was preceded by a monster parade over two miles in length. Something like thirty beautiful floats formed a part of the procession, these coming not only from the city, but representing every city and village in the county. Wednesday was declared a half holiday by proclamation throughout the county, even the rural schools closing to allow the entire countryside to take part in the biggest day the county has ever known.

In announcing his candidacy Mayor Green made it evident that he is not going to enter upon a campaign of vilification, but that his platform is to be one of a constructive nature, conducted as a gentleman and mindful of the position he has always held in the hearts of the people of this state. Here is a few of the high lights in his platform on which he will make his campaign:

Salient Points in Mayor Green's Platform

Promises a clean and decent contest. Will give the Governor credit for the good things he has done.

Build roads cheaply and quickly. This calls for a leader who can work with men.

Michigan is going to have a complete paved road system regardless of who is Governor. No man is indispensable.

Highways to be built with cash, not hoped-for revenues. Highways should not be promised, unless they are to be built.

Highways for all Michigan, rather than for those sections in which votes are most numerous. Million and a quarter spent on the cement plant might better have gone into building roads.

Promptly paid contractors will make lower bids.

DISCUSS MAIN STREET PAVING

Mr. Vernon B. Redfern of the Portland Cement association, Detroit, was in the city Wednesday forenoon. He is trained in the engineering of street paving and while here made a superficial study of Main street, making suggestions for pavement.

He held an informal conference with Mayor Hanson and some of the trustees, an outline was prepared and a rough estimate made for the paving of three down-town blocks. This street receives heavy traffic and the result is that it has cost a mint of money to keep it in usable condition, and still we have nothing.

Enough money has been paid out to easily cover the cost of a paved street, and it seems that this would be a good time to begin the practice of real economy by building permanently and with modern materials. The upkeep of pavement, it is claimed by experts, is one-tenth of the cost of any other kind of road material. The village already has $10,000 in its treasury above what is needed for this year and it seems that no better use could be made of it than to provide a paved Main street.

Mayor Hanson says he will present for publication the facts and figures of this matter through the Avalanche next week for the information of the public. He will ask the people to determine the project.

Under Administrative Board Act a strong man makes a dictatorship. A hard man finds limitless opportunities for dishonesty.

Woman's prison to be actually completed more as a vocational rather than a penal institution remembering that although they may have committed a crime they are women and many of them mothers.

State educational boards to be unhindered by the executive. Uphold all the constitution rather than that section only which gives the governor power to remove those officials who disagree with him.

Enforce all laws. Legislative rather than administrative board to have power of appropriation.

Abolish system of barter in legislation. Centralize responsibility but not power.

Give all members of administrative board real share in conduct of state. Give administrative board opportunity to overrule governor's veto over its acts.

Daylight government. Accounting by accountants rather than by interested persons. State's books open to all and understandable to all.

Appropriations to be used for specific purposes for which they are made.

Abolish the General fund, now but a grab-bag. Each appropriation to specify from what source this revenue is to come.

Conservation under understanding and sympathetic leadership. Fire all members of Conservation Department engaging in politics.

Give guess work and ignorance in conservation. Adequate pay for game and fire wardens.

Wardens not to be petition peddlers. Sportsmen to be consulted in selecting personnel and in conduct of conservation department.

Reforestation fundamental. Really prevent fires. Educators, not politicians, in administration of Conservation Department.

Crooks getting the best of society advocates speedier and sterner justice. Second, third and fourth paroles do not square with this policy.

No pardons or paroles without the knowledge and approval of trial and prison officials. Actual reformation first requisite for parole.

Two terms only for governor. Promises not to build political machine.

State employees to be fired if they play politics. Transform Lansing vote factory into a service station.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to extend our sincere thanks to those who were so kind during the illness and death of our husband and son; to Father Culligan for his kind words and the various organizations and individuals for the beautiful bouquets and beautiful floral pieces.

Mrs. W. H. Cody,
Joseph Cody.

H. S. ATHLETIC ELIGIBILITY RULES

Effective September 1, 1926

Article I of By-Laws

Sec. 1. Every student competing must be a bona fide student of the high school which he represents, and must be enrolled not later than Monday of the fourth week of the semester in which he competes.

Sec. 2. Every student competing in any contest must be under twenty (20) years of age at the time of the contest.

Sec. 3. No student shall compete in any branch of athletics for more than four seasons.

Sec. 4. No student shall compete in any branch of athletics who has received enough hours of credit to entitle him to be graduated from school, who is a graduate of a regular four year high school, or who is a graduate of a secondary school which has the same requirements for graduation as a regular four year high school, but a student who finishes the required number of hours for graduation in less than eight semesters shall not be barred from inter-scholastic athletic competition while doing undergraduate work until the end of the eighth semester.

Sec. 5. No student shall compete in any branch of athletics who has been enrolled in grades nine to twelve inclusive more than eight semesters. The last two semesters must be consecutive. Enrollment in a school for a period of three weeks or more, or competing in one or more inter-scholastic athletic contests, shall be considered enrollment for a semester under this rule.

Sec. 6. Any student who, after participating in an athletic contest as a member of a high school athletic team, participates in an athletic contest as a member of any other similar team the same season, shall be ineligible for the remainder of that season.

Sec. 7. Any student who has used, or is using, his athletic skill or knowledge of athletics for gain, or who has competed on any college team, or who has played with a professional team, or who has contested with professional athletes where the entry is as an individual, or who has competed under an assumed name, shall be ineligible for any contest.

Sec. 8. No student shall compete in any contest who does not have a passing grade from the beginning of the semester to the date seven calendar days prior to the contest, in studies aggregating at least fifteen (15) school periods of recitation per week. In determining the number of school periods of recitation per week under this rule reviews, extra curricular work and physical training shall not be counted.

Sec. 9. No student shall compete in any contest during any semester who does not have to his credit on the books of the school that he represents at least fifteen (15) hours of work for that semester in which he shall have been enrolled in grades 9 to 12 inclusive for a period of three weeks or more or during which he shall have taken part in any inter-scholastic athletic contest. In determining the number of hours credit during the semester under this rule the usual credit allowed by the school shall be given, but reviews, extra curricular work and physical training shall not be credited. Deficiencies may not be made up during a subsequent semester for qualification purposes that semester. The record at the end of a semester shall be final under this rule.

Sec. 10. Any student who accepts from any source a sweater, jersey, or any other awards, exceeding ($1.00) in value other than those usually given such as medals, ribbons, and letters, shall be ineligible for any inter-scholastic athletic contest.

Sec. 11. No student who has been enrolled as a high school student in any high school shall be permitted to participate in any inter-scholastic contest as a member of any other high school until he has been enrolled in such high school for one full semester unless the parents of such students actually change their residence to the second school district. In the latter case, the student will be eligible as he was in the school from which he withdrew. A student must be enrolled not later than Monday of the fourth week of the semester to qualify for a full semester's enrollment under this rule.

Article II of By-Laws—Provisions Governing Contests between Senior High Schools

Sec. 1. No high school in the state of Michigan shall enter any athletics or athletic teams in any contest whatever unless the athletes or athletic teams of such high school shall be eligible under Article I of the By-Laws of the Michigan High School Athletic Association. This rule applies to second or reserve teams also.

Sec. 2. The principal of the school or that member of the faculty approved by him, shall be manager of the teams representing the school.

Sec. 3. No member of this association shall allow football practice to begin before Labor Day of each school year, except that a school which opens before Labor Day may start practice with the opening day of school.

Sec. 4. The person responsible for arranging for the immediate training of a team shall be a member of the regular teaching staff of the school. Coaches, not members of the teaching staff, may be engaged, but they shall have no voice in the management of athletics, and shall confine their attention to athletic instruction.

Sec. 5. The final management of all inter-scholastic athletics shall be in the hands of some member, or members of the faculty, who shall sign all contracts.

Sec. 6. Whenever two or more members of this association compete in an athletic contest, they shall

INTERESTING ITEMS OF NEWS GATHERED FROM THE FILES OF THE AVALANCHE OF 25 YEARS AGO.

Work on the new hardwood factory is promised to begin next week.

Judge of Probate, J. C. Hanson visited Roscommon one day last week.

August 20th has been designated as Michigan Day at the Pan American.

We do not think there is a vacant room in the village, and several new houses will be built at once.

Mrs. G. L. Alexander and Fred returned from Ann Arbor the first of the week.

At the Circuit Court in Roscommon last week, three divorces were granted. Is marriage a failure? We do not think there is a vacant room in the village, and several new houses will be built at once.

Mrs. C. Blair has finished her visit here, and joined her husband in their new home in Homer.

While there is nothing new in sight regarding the cement factory, those interested maintain that it is sure to come.

Miss Thora Amjornson of Grayling spent Saturday and Sunday with the R. D. Bailey family—Gaylord News.

The first real rain of the year came Tuesday night. It was really a fair shower, a little more than a quarter of an inch having fallen.

Circuit Judge M. J. Conine came up from his home in Oscoda county, Monday, for a little visit before our court convened, in which he was attorney for Mr. Robinson.

Washington Alger of Lewiston, a former resident here, was a guest of his brother, E. Alger, during the session of court, he being called as a witness in one of the causes pending.

The Planet Jr. garden drill is considered the best on the market and is for sale at the Avalanche office, with all the modern attachments.

The debris of the burned mill is nearly removed, and a gang of mechanics is engaged in framing the timber for the new structure, which work will be pushed as fast as possible.

H. A. Brintnell, Pros. Atty. of Montmorency county, H. H. Woodruff of Roscommon and Chas. S. Abbott, attorney from West Branch, were in attendance at Circuit Court this week, each representing clients.

A couple of sawyers in Mason's camp got into a jamboree over their work, and one of them punched his partner in the eye. An arrest followed and Justice McCullough said three dollars and costs, or fifteen days.

We reprint today the endorsement by the West Branch Herald-Times of Judge Sharpe for the nomination for representative in congress for this district, and fully endorse every word as to his peculiar fitness and worth. What will be developed in the political game previous to the convention, cannot be foretold, but unless Bay County dominates, there is little fear but that Judge Sharpe will be a worthy successor to Hon. R. O. Crump.

A careless boy on a wheel collided with an elderly lady on the sidewalk a few days ago, throwing her violently to the ground. Such carelessness in fast riding in the business part of the village is inexcusable, and a few more such accidents will bar wheels from the sidewalks by the legal authorities. Wheelmen should watch out, and at all times have their wheel under perfect control.

Decoration Day
Marvin Post, 240, G. A. R., will observe Decoration Day, May 30, with appropriate services. The Post and other civic societies will meet at their halls at 1:30 p. m., and march to the Opera House where the services will begin at two o'clock sharp.

On last Saturday evening, the 18th inst., a goodly number of the friends and neighbors of E. F. Sherman met at Maple Forest gathered at his home to surprise and also to remind him that it was the 46th anniversary of his birth. To say that Ben was surprised, when his first early-to-bed nap was suddenly interrupted, is only stating it mildly. However, as is usual with him, he was equal to the occasion, and welcomed them all in his hearty manner, and with his genial voice cordially entertained all present. After the interchange of pioneer reminiscences, pleasing jests, and the partaking of delicious ice cream, cake, coffee, etc., such as farmers' wives so well know how to prepare, the guests departed, wishing him many similar happy returns of his birthday.

PRIMARY FIGHT IS CERTAIN

For the first time in six years a real fight in the September primary election is in prospect. In 1924 and 1922 there was little doubt as to the outcome of the race for the Republican gubernatorial nomination. Governor Groesbeck had a smooth organization and the split fields that faced him only divided the anti vote and clinched his margin of victory.

This year promises another story. The governor has announced his candidacy for a fourth term. Mayor Fred Green of Ionia is expected to step out as his opponent for the Republican nomination. No other prospective candidates are in sight and it would not be surprising if a two-man race developed.

If it does the governor will have the stiffest battle of his executive career. He must carry the handicap of trying for a fourth term, an unheard of practice in Michigan and a plan that is certain to find prejudicial opposition in the minds of those voters who do not believe in perpetuating the tenure of public office. The charges of autocracy and one man government that have been hurled at him since the administration board and centralized government were set up, will be accentuated with the new claim that an effort is being made to establish a life time monarchy.

In addition to the natural disadvantages he must encounter, the administration forces have been weakened by the desertion of such stalwarts as John S. Haggerty of Detroit, Burt D. Cady of Port Huron, W. W. Potter of the public utilities commission, Samuel Odell, a member of the same body, Frank D. McKay, state treasurer, Charles J. DeLand, secretary of state, Thomas E. Johnson, superintendent of public instruction and others. All were former allies and friends of the governor's except Johnson, and even he worked for the Groesbeck cause two years ago. This year indications are all willing to be toiling to pile up votes for Green.

Because of the large bulk of votes in Detroit the Wayne county situation will be one of the pivotal points of the campaign. In previous election years Haggerty, the governor's former closest personal friend, advisor and companion, stood shoulder to shoulder with Groesbeck—and they presented a fearsome combination. Their combined strength was well nigh invulnerable. With Haggerty on the other side of the fence there is bound to be a division in the Wayne organization which will be reflected in the balloting. In addition to this serious loss, the governor must face the unopposed opposition of John W. Smith, mayor of Detroit. And if opposition is no mean item. Mayor Smith, as a foe, will show little quarter. He has a huge following in Detroit and undoubtedly will do his best to swing it in Green's direction.

If the claims of the Green followers are correct the governor will lose out, or come very close to it, in Wayne, which until now has always been considered his private and unimpregnable stronghold. Out-state the fight promises to wage furiously with counties scattering into one column or the other as the conflict develops. In Kent a show-down may come between Lieutenant Governor George Welsh, who is administration from thence to toe, and McKay. The Green followers claim McKay holds the balance of power, and that he not only will swing Kent away from Groesbeck but will send an anti-Groesbeck delegation to the Republican convention following the primary, when officers below governor and lieutenant governor will be nominated.

Mayor Green will go into the race with the solid undivided backing of his home county, Ionia. While the number of votes involved in this county is not huge, nevertheless he may point with pardonable pride to the fact that in the territory where he is best known he has the backing of his fellow citizens. In addition he is an out-state man and the governor is a Detroit candidate. Many out-state counties have protested against highway payments to counties and against the general scheme of the Groesbeck highway system, particularly those which have benefited through improved highways. If the fight could be turned into a straight Detroit-against-the-out-state-counties, affairs there would be little concern in the Groesbeck camp as it is conceded he probably could pick up enough out-state votes to top off a huge Wayne majority with an easy win. But with Wayne divided within itself, as it appears bound to be this year, the horse is of an entirely different color. —Michigan State Digest.

London dandies are going to shed their waistcoats this summer just like Americans do. Another blow at the vested interests.

A Columbia University professor says that the twentieth century man is "ethically upset." Now you know what is the matter with you.

OWN YOUR OWN HOME

We are in the midst of a great national prosperity, perhaps as great as we have ever known. It is doubtful if there has ever been a period in our history when economical conditions have been more favorable for the average citizen to own his own home. We should take advantage of this opportunity, for the home-owner presents the greatest safety in citizenship a nation can have. It is up to the foundation of our homes that we build our national progress, and the fact that we have more home owners than anywhere else in the world is due in part to our present place among the nations of the earth. Everybody of worthwhile importance realizes this fact, and it is noticeable that men of means are making it possible, through the banks, building and loan associations and other agencies, for the worker to have a castle of his own, within whose portals he is secure from the onslaughts of the world and where he may be able to gird himself each day for the battles of life. The home encourages religion, thrift, decency, courage, ambition; it protects the young from evil influences and presents a haven of rest and solace for those who have grown old in the service of their community. Resolve this day to plan for that sanctuary which will mean so much, not only to yourself but to your loved ones that will follow after.

About the only result of the Senate Volstead investigation was to leave the drier drier and the wets wetter than they were before.

The reason they still call it pre-war liquor is that after you drink it the battle starts immediately.

THE IMMIGRANT

It is not a far cry for the most of us to remember the time when immigrant cars and immigrant trains were part of the equipment of every transcontinental railroad line and their tributaries. The cars were generally attached to the front end, immediately following the engine, and wherever the train stopped these strange people were the object of curious and close scrutiny by the natives in every inland village through which the train passed. In those days the industrial centers and spots where railroad and other great building projects were under way claimed the larger part of the influx that yearly came here from the northern countries of Europe. Of late years, under restrictive immigration laws, we see little of this foreign invasion. We no longer see the dirty, ill ventilated cars filled with men, women and children huddled together, bound for some central point where later they could be distributed throughout the country. Nowadays a single immigrant is an object of curiosity. Last year one hundred and sixty-four thousand were allowed to enter the United States, and of this number it is interesting to note that Michigan stood second in the list of states absorbing that number, doubtless due to the attraction of the automobile field.

After seeing what happened in Tacoma-Arica, we don't believe we would want to be an umpire in the South American league.

Abd-el-Krim can be thankful for one thing when peace is declared. He won't have to send a commission to the United States to fund any debts.

TAXES MORE THAN EARNINGS

In commenting on the necessity for reductions in local taxation and for a high class of administration in local government, John T. Flynn, in a recent article, points out that the various government agencies in this country draw more in taxation from many kinds of business than the owners get in dividends. He says:

"The business of local government is the next step toward which business must turn its attention. The federal tax cuts will amount to nothing unless this is done."

He shows that the per capita cost of local government has nearly trebled in the last 13 years, although neither wages in city departments nor commodity prices have increased in anywhere near this proportion.

To illustrate the tax absorbing proclivities of government, Mr. Flynn points out that public utilities are assessed nearly as much per annum for various taxes as they are allowed to pay in profits to their owners. It might be added that government has been collecting considerably more in taxes from railroads than they have been able to pay in profits to the owners.

As to a remedy, Mr. Flynn says: "The trouble undoubtedly lies in the antiquated methods of running city departments. There should be some sort of reform in methods such as has been inaugurated in federal departments through the Bureau of Efficiency. That bureau, for instance, found a department in Washington employing 250 men to collect certain taxes, merely because it used an antiquated system of accounting. A modern bank system was installed and the force was reduced to 80 men, thus saving $250,000 a year in that one office."

"This is what the cities need. Moreover they need some business-like method of supervising what is called outlays—the sums expended on local improvements. Countless millions are wasted in this way every year and the burden imposed upon business is so great that, in some cases, it means all the difference between profit and loss."

"This is a job for the business men, for in the end local taxes are essentially a tax on business."

It might be added that this is a job for all the people because every truck driver, every newspaper banker, capitalist, man, woman and child ultimately pays in the cost of living, all taxes which are assessed against business.

Over in India it is against the law for a widow to remarry. This probably induces the ladies to take mighty good care of their husbands.

JOHNNY APPLESEED

We are celebrating this year the 150th anniversary of many stirring scenes and incidents of American history. One hundred and fifty years ago free government was being established in the Western world and many notable characters were walking across the pages of history, whose daring deeds we are commemorating today. And so this year, while we are engaged in paying tribute to the heroes of 1776, it is also well to remember that it was this same year that marked the birth of an eccentric character who became known to the first settlers of the Northwest territory as Johnny Appleseed, pioneer orchardist of America. For over forty years this man devoted his time in wandering through the wilderness planting apple seeds for the benefit of future settlers and their descendants. To this man was due the splendid orchards that blossomed so full during the early part of the nineteenth century, when states like Michigan were in the making. Johnny Appleseed was not a war hero, his real name has been forgotten, but the service he rendered for mankind has survived the years and will not be overlooked by those who shared in the work that he gave to the nation. Trees are being planted this year in his honor, for we have learned that he who plants a tree leaves a monument behind.

The tired business man who used to go to a musical comedy in the evening to get rented up now does it by knocking off at one o'clock for the golf links.

Maybe the modern youth is going the pace that kills, but anyhow the moving picture show is a big improvement on the music hall of thirty years ago.

SWAY BROODING SWAY

It is never the intention of the founders of a government to have it go into business competition with its private citizens. Every time it enters the field of business it does a lasting damage to large numbers of its own people and adds a double burden on the taxpayers who must make up the tax revenue which government-owned enterprises are exempted from paying.

STRIKING AT THE ROOT OF GOVERNMENT

The greatest sufferers from government competition at present are the small publishers and printers who cannot compete with the tax-free government owned printing plant which prints and sells return-addressed stamped envelopes. There is much agitation to discontinue this abuse, but at the same time we see the country flooded with political propaganda to launch the government in other branches of industry. All such proposals are contrary to the true spirit of our Constitution.

The fundamental point the American people must consider is not so much whether they want public ownership of some particular industry, but whether or not they want to change our entire form of government, the cardinal principle of which is a recognition of the right to private property and the development of private enterprise under government protection, to a system which does not recognize the right to private property and which would have the government step in and take over the various business enterprises which heretofore private citizens have had a right to operate.

OTSEGO LAKES AND ACREAGE PURCHASED BY SYNDICATE

A syndicate composed of Ann Arbor, Ypsilanti and Detroit men, May 6 purchased 7,484 acres of land containing eight lakes in Otsego county. The tract is located seven miles southwest of Gaylord, and has 14 miles of shoreline on Linn Lake, Farm Lakes and Crooked Lakes. The lake frontage will be subdivided. The lakes have fine sand beaches, are noted for their fishing and are said to be ideally suited for summer homes. The deal is one of the largest in the Northeastern Michigan in the past few years.

PARAGRAPHS CONCERNING MICHIGAN

(By Ed A. Nowack)

Lansing.—The Morse Chain company of Detroit was the first to equip autos with non-skid chains. They used to equip bikes.

In the course of a year the Fisher Auto Body company uses 800,000 pounds of tacks, 720,000,000 screws, 750,000 pounds of glue, 75,000 tons of sheet metal, a quarter billion feet of lumber, one and one-half million pounds of paint, 36,000 pounds of thread and a few other items in body manufacture.

Michigan annually exports about $155,000 worth of eggs in the shell, frozen and canned. Her ham and shoulder exports average about $650,000, her bacon $450,000, milk products $95,000, and over 300,000 millions of autos a quarter of a billion.

The University of Detroit was founded in 1877.

Michigan industry and ingenuity has helped the Florida building boom considerably. Portable houses made in Michigan have found favor in the south.

The Bessemer Herald has announced that one of the eight gas railway motor coaches in the country covers the route on the C. and N. W. between Wakefield, Bessemer and Ironwood.

Iron county plans on starting a county owned seedling nursery for reforestation purposes. This will be the first of its kind in the United States.

Nine elected officials were removed from office in Michigan last year by the attorney general's office. Various offenses were charged to those removed.

Michigan produces annually around four billion dollars' worth of manufactured products. The buyers for these productions, for the consumption of her workers, to supply agriculture, public construction and maintenance, about two billion dollars worth of raw, semi-fabricated materials.

More than 1,000 buses now traverse the highways of Michigan, according to Major Rolf Duff, member of the Public Utilities commission.

The 14-year-old Michigan ticket is 11 when buying a railroad ticket and 16 when driving a car, satirically remarks Charles J. DeLand, secretary of state.

While checking up assault cases the state police investigator Allan Straight, commissioner of public safety, remarked that when some men say they run things at their house they may mean the furnace or the washing machine.

Traffic signals in Michigan certainly help, says Oscar Olander, deputy commissioner of the state police. "When the driver in front holds out his hand you know he is going to do one of three things," said Olander, "he was wading through hundreds of reports of highway accidents."

Farm Bureau Notes

R. D. Bailey, Co. Agricultural Agent

Cheaper to Buy Lime than Hay
The experience of the past winter should have taught that truth to many. If too busy just now to haul lime, remember that it can be done yet for two months. Alfalfa and sweet clover may be sown most any time on well limed, well fertilized soil, up to, but not after the middle of August.

If lime is good for some of our farmers, why not to all?
Some are going to have a lot of grief trying to get along without lime. They will get poor stands of clover, alfalfa or sweet clover. In many cases they will get no stand at all. They will lose the money they put into seed. They will have to buy hay. They will pay out for hay all they make on other crops. Many will be compelled to leave the farm. Many, who just hang on and stay, will finally have to come to using lime that they should have started to use years before. So it goes!

The Fight is On

Yes, the fight is on to see whether your corn gets ripe or not. Soft corn or hard corn—which do you prefer? The right fertilizers, properly applied, hasten the maturity, make it ripen earlier. This has been proven many times.

World Champion Says So

Champion corn grower of the world in 1924, Mr. R. L. Heilman of Indiana, who won highest honors at the 1924 International Hay and Grain show says: "In my experience, fertilizer has done much to increase the yield, better the quality and hasten the maturity of corn. I estimate that at least 20 per cent of my success as a corn grower has been due to the proper use of commercial fertilizer."

Nip and Tuck

Corn is a precious crop to us. A good crop of it is wonderfully helpful on a farm. Its growth should be a matter of greater concern to thinking farmers among us. Will it ripen this fall?

Soft Corn or Hard Corn

You can take your choice—35 bushels per acre, with 68.8 per cent of soft corn, or 65 bushels per acre with 1.2 per cent soft corn. These are actual figures from a test conducted by the Iowa Experiment Station in 1924. The first figure was from a plot that had no soil treatment. The latter figures are from a plot that received MANURE, LIME, AND PHOSPHATE.

Stop That Soft Corn Loss

Soft corn doesn't go far in producing beef or pork. Much has been said about feeding soft corn, and on methods of drying, salting, or storing it. But why produce soft corn? A good crop of sound hard corn in a soft corn year is worth real money. Whether fed or sold on the market, hard corn can be produced in a soft corn year by proper soil treatment because IT HAS BEEN DONE.

If the season is backward, unfertilized corn "stands around on one foot," as it is waiting for something. Along come a frost, and the crop is caught, still immature. A fertilizer high in available phosphoric acid applied at planting time is a tremendous help in promoting earlier ripening of the corn crop.

Life Savers

Do you know what I'd do if farming here? I would put in more corn than usual. An acre of it would be near the barnyard as a "soiling crop," to cut green from day to day, from the time it is knee-high, to call the cows home, and to keep the flow of milk when pasture is short during the hot, dry spell.

I would have a few acres of soy beans. They may be planted at corn planting time and cut for hay about the last of August. They make cow-hay about as rich as alfalfa.

I would have a few acres of vetch and oats for hay. I would have a few acres of Sudan grass. It hustles right along with alfalfa in the hot and dry that other crops grow but little or go back.

I would sow cow horn turnips with part of the grass seed that I seeded with oats.

I would thus get hundreds of bushels of roots with little expense and with no labor excepting that of gathering the roots.

I would have at least half an acre of carrots. They are splendid tonic for horses and cows and help keep the butter a pleasing yellow in winter.

I would have at least half an acre of mangels or mangel Long Golden Tankard and Danish Sludstrup. I would try these three, side by side, to see which I preferred.

I would haul lime at odd times so I could sow at least ten acres this year to alfalfa or sweet clover.

How does this program look to you? Is it not reasonable the way which to provide for winter, so that cattle can be well fed, and to avoid buying so much feed?

Timothy is The Bunk

The Michigan Crop Improvement Association's publication "Meadow and Field," says:

Alfalfa vs. Timothy as Cash Crop in 1925

The average yield of alfalfa in the dry season of 1925 was 2,035 tons per acre for the State. Timothy yielded only a third as much. The average value of a 10-acre field of timothy at $16 a ton was $1,635. A 10-acre field of average alfalfa at $16 a ton was worth $3,270, or at $20, more nearly its comparative market value. The 10 acres of alfalfa was worth over $400. Deduct average overhead costs, such as taxes and interest on the land investment, and you will find that it took over 55 acres of 1925 Timothy to give the same margin of profit above costs as was secured from 10 acres of alfalfa.

IMPROVED FORD CAR SERVICE

The thousands who go touring in Ford cars this year, will find their journeys made much more pleasurable through the extension of the Ford service organization. While the Ford car owner always has enjoyed a big advantage in this respect, there never has been a time when service facilities were so extensive.

"One thing the tourist should do before starting on his trip," says a Ford Motor Company statement, "is to take his car to his authorized Ford dealer and have it thoroughly inspected. Any small adjustments that may be necessary can be made and where needed new parts supplied, so that the tourist can start his journey with a car fully fit for the trip."

"There may be nothing at all wrong. At that, it will be a satisfaction to the Ford owner to know before leaving on his travels that his car has been carefully examined by competent mechanics and found to be in first-class condition."

"Once on the road, the Ford owner has at his service an authorized dealer in almost any town or village."

Under its policy of direct supervision over the dealer service, the company during the last year has affected a number of improvements in this division of its business. As a result, authorized Ford dealers everywhere are much better equipped, both with mechanics and machinery, for serving car owners. This assures the tourist prompt and efficient attention any place along the road.

GETTING UP NIGHTS

Is One of Nature's Danger Signals. A Healthy Bladder Does Not Act at Night.

Irritation, excessive acidity or abnormal deposits may be the cause. It needs cleansing. Lithiated Buchu (Keller Formula) acts on the kidneys and bladder as Epsom Salts on the bowels. R. D. Neblett, 10 Oak St., Battle Creek, Mich., says: "For three years had to get up three times at night. Lithiated Buchu (Keller Formula) helped in two days. I now do heavy work." It isn't a patent medicine. The formula is on the label. Sold by leading drug stores or Keller Laboratory, Mechanicsburg, Ohio. Locally at Mac & Gidley's, druggists.

ESTABLISH INSTITUTE TO HELP HOME BUILDERS

Establishment of the Colotechnic Institute of America as an aid to home builders in the construction of better homes and to place at their disposal the latest scientific discoveries in building construction was announced today by B. G. Dahlberg of Chicago.

It is the aim of the Institute to delve into all problems of the home builder and give him the benefit of its researches and the experience of its members. The Institute will supply the very latest data on building practices. Economy and utility go hand in hand in the information which this Institute will furnish the public through its surveys, tests and compilation of the best construction methods of which science and practice are able to evolve. It will be a veritable laboratory of building facts, including structural problems, building trends, analyses, laboratory tests, experimentation in refrigeration, sheathing, roof and floor insulation, interior walling, and other matters which will keep the home cool in summer and warm in winter.

"Discoveries are constantly being made which practically revolutionize previous home building methods," said Mr. Dahlberg, in announcing the establishment of the Colotechnic Institute. "The Institute will issue bulletins containing facts on every phase of the modern home construction. They will present to the home builder the newest scientific developments in the construction of a home. We will in which factors we can make have an eye on economy as well as utility, comfort, health and beauty. It is the aim of the Institute to help the home builder build better homes without any material increase in the cost of construction. It will be a real service bureau for home builders."

Dahlberg is among the youngest of America's captains of industry. Born in Sweden, the early part of his life in America was spent in railroad, a good portion of it as an associate of the late James J. Hill, the great empire builder of the Northwest. In more recent years, he has been prominently identified with a number of large construction projects. A vision of greater efficiency and economy in building, growing out of his experience, finally led to the decision to establish the Institute.

CITIZEN'S MILITARY TRAINING CAMP

The time for enrollment in the Citizen's Military Training Camps is rapidly drawing to a close and all young men desiring to attend the camps are urged to submit their applications at once. The necessary information and application blanks can be had by seeing—

Mr. Melvin A. Bates, Chairman Crawford County, Grayling, Mich.

Mr. Clarence B. Johnson, Committeeman Crawford County, Grayling, Mich.

We hope to secure at least one applicant during the next ten days in order that Crawford County will be represented at one of the camps this summer. To date Crawford County has not secured an applicant and heretofore has always had a representative at one of the camps—so let's go—send in your application at once to the Chief of Staff, 25th Division, 204 New Telegraph Building, Detroit, Michigan.

CHEVROLET PRODUCTION SETS NEW RECORD

With retail sales far in excess of factory production and thousands of unfilled orders reported on hand by dealers, the Chevrolet Motor Company manufactured 233,683 cars during the first four months of this year, the highest number of three-speed transmission type cars ever turned out by any manufacturer in a similar period.

The month of April set a new high production mark in the history of the company, when 71,157 cars were made in 24 working days, an average daily production of 2,964 units.

Of the 71,157 cars made the last month, 62,575 were for domestic sale. Retail domestic sales for the month totaled 68,278 cars, showing sales were 5,826 ahead of United States factory production for the month. Production was pushed far beyond the normal output to take care of dealers' expanding demands.

A new high record for sales in a single week was set in the week ending May 1, when 17,628 cars were sold at retail.

"Chevrolet is attaining one of the most spectacular successes in the automobile industry because it is not only pleasing its owners but constantly gaining thousands of new friends," said W. S. Knudsen, president and general manager of the Chevrolet Motor Company. "Under the most varied traffic and road conditions in city or country, its sturdy performance, modern appearance and comfort are creating an atmosphere of good will through word of mouth and the most effective advertising any automobile can have."

Factory schedules call for building of over 70,000 cars a month for forecasting a continuance of steady demand throughout the summer.

BUICK CARS GIVEN SEVERE TEST

Many months are spent in designing and experimental work before an automobile is actually produced in quantity. The engineering department must plan a model down to the finest detail, and then build a fleet of test cars to be used in proving that the model will stand up in actual use.

Hundreds of thousands of car miles are travelled before any part is considered ready to be put into production. Many changes are usually necessary before the car meets the exacting standards set.

In order to duplicate actual road conditions and to give the car a service test more rigid than they are ever likely to receive in actual use, Buick test cars are daily put through their paces at the General Motors Proving grounds near Milford, Michigan.

Here the cars are tested in every conceivable manner for strength, stamina, comfort, road-ability and economy of operation. Each of the fifteen or twenty test cars is driven from 300 to 500 miles every twenty-four hours. They are periodically torn down and inspected for signs of wear by Buick engineers.

The nature of the speed test in which a fifth wheel and recording apparatus is used. It is one of hundreds of tests which determine the qualities of the car.

BRITAIN'S PLAN TO END MINE DISPUTE

Subsidy of 3,000,000 Pounds Financial Aid to Extra Miners Provide Wage Board.

London.—The process of liquidating the British general strike, brought to an end a few days ago, has proceeded rapidly and the country's industrial life once more is headed toward normal conditions. The railway companies and their employees have reached an agreement over the terms of resumption of work. Members of the transport union and the employers as well as on the way toward an understanding.

The government offers to have bills passed at the present session of parliament embodying the changes in the coal industry recommended by the Samuel commission. It also offers a further subsidy to the industry of approximately £3,000,000, in addition to giving financial assistance to superfluous miners displaced from the pits.

These offers, however, are conditional on both sides accepting all the terms of the government memorandum. The miners will be obliged to accept a reduction in minimum wages, the cut to be determined later. The government's memorandum provides for a national board of three members for the owners and three representatives of the miners, with a neutral chairman, to frame a national wages and hours agreement governing the principles on which general wage-rates should be ascertained in each district.

This board shall also decide the minimum percentage on the basis of taking into consideration the state and the prospects of the coal industry, the reorganization proposals of the commission and "other relevant factors."

In a letter to Evans Williams, negotiator for the owners, and Herbert Smith, president of the miners, Prime Minister Baldwin outlined the government proposals.

The government also proposes that the national wages board shall issue its decision within three weeks, and in the event of a disagreement, the independent chairman shall have the final decision. The wages of the poorer paid miners, however, are safeguarded by a provision that men getting 45 shillings weekly or less shall not have their pay reduced. A loophole is left for the miners to accept longer hours if they so desire, by a provision that if the parties agree on a modification of hours the government at once will propose the necessary legislation and help its passage.

The terms of the railway settlement provide that the strikers be reinstated as soon as traffic offers and work can be found for them, the principle of seniority being followed. The unions admitted that in the general strike they committed a wrong and act against the companies and agree that the companies now will not surrender the legal right to claim for damages arising from the strike. The unions further undertake (1) not to strike again without previous negotiations with the companies; (2) not to support members taking unauthorized action; (3) not to encourage supervisory employees to take part in a strike.

Soviet Engineers to Inspect U. S. Plants

Montreal, Que.—A commission of four hydroelectric engineers from the Soviet union will tour the American continent for three months in preparation for the construction, on the Dnieper river in the Ukraine, of the largest hydroelectric development in Europe, gathering technical material. They will study the largest Canadian and American power plants from coast to coast.

The Dnieper project, which is a link in the huge superpower development planned by the Soviet government and includes large inland navigation and irrigation plans as well, will cost $75,000,000. The power plant will have an initial capacity of 210,000 kilowatts and an ultimate capacity of 455,000 kilowatts.

Americans Plan to Win Flight Across Atlantic

Newark, N. J.—Announcement is made that the Aeronautical Club of New Jersey would attempt to finance a nonstop airplane flight from Newark to Paris some time before June 20. The early start is proposed in an endeavor to beat Rene Fonck, French ace, who is expected to take off from Mitchell field on that date in an effort to win the Raymond Orteig prize of $25,000 offered in 1924 for the first nonstop flight from continent to continent.

Lieut. Commander Noel Davis, United States naval reserves, and Lieut. Frank H. Conant, United States navy, are preparing a three-engine plane for the proposed flight.

Banker Sent to Prison
St. Paul, Minn.—Frank C. Wilbour, former assistant cashier of the Austin (Minn.) National bank, accused of embezzling $23,000, pleaded guilty to false entries and was sentenced to three years in Leavenworth prison.

Life for Robbing Bank
Anoka, Minn.—Clarence Eaton of Des Moines, Iowa, was found guilty of robbing the Anoka National bank and sentenced to life imprisonment in the state prison at Stillwater.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—Part wolf, part dog—when two months old Baree has his first meeting with an enemy, Papayushew (young wolf). Fighting hard, the antagonists are suddenly plunged into a swollen creek.

CHAPTER II.—Badly buffeted, and half-drowned, Baree is finally flung on the bank, but again water has destroyed his sense of direction and he is lost, lonely and hungry. For many days his life is one of fear and distress. He finally wanders into the trapping grounds of a halfbreed, Pierrot Du Quene, and his daughter, Nepeese the Willow. Taking Baree for a wolf, Nepeese shoots and wounds him, but he escapes.

CHAPTER III.—The wolf blood in Baree becomes uppermost. He rapidly learns Nature's secrets, though he finds no comrades and is desperately lonely.

CHAPTER IV.—Following Wakayoo, the black bear, Baree subsists royally on the catches of fish the big fellow leaves. He comes again into Pierrot's trapping domain. Pierrot shoots Wakayoo. Nepeese, insulting Baree as dog, not wolf, is one to fear him. Baree is strongly drawn to the girl, but cannot entirely overcome his dread of man.

CHAPTER V.—Baree makes friends with a colony of beavers, losing much of his sense of loneliness.

CHAPTER VI.—Bush McTaggart, factor at Lac Bain, Hudson's Bay company's post, man of evil life, has long coveted Nepeese, even to the extent of offering marriage, but makes no progress with his suit. On his way to Pierrot and Nepeese McTaggart takes Baree in a trap, and in a struggle is bitten. With the dog he comes to Pierrot's cabin.

Chapter VII

From the window, her face screened by the folds of the curtain which she had made for it, the Willow saw what happened outside. She was not smiling now. She was breathing quickly and her body was tense. She heard McTaggart's coarse voice, his hoarse uttering greeting, and then she saw him showing Pierrot what he carried under his arm. There came to her distinctly his explanation of how he had caught his captive in a rabbit-snare. He unwrapped the blanket. Nepeese gave a cry of amazement. In an instant she was out beside them. She did not look at McTaggart's red face, blazing in his joy and exultation.

"It is Baree," she cried.

She took the bundle from McTaggart and turned to Pierrot.

"Tell him that Baree belongs to me," she said.

She hurried into the cabin. McTaggart looked after her, stunned and amazed. Then he looked at Pierrot. A man half blind could have seen that Pierrot was as amazed as he. Nepeese had not spoken to him—the Factor of Lac Bain! She had not looked at him! And she had taken the dog from him with as little concern as though he had been a wooden man. The red in his face deepened as he stared from Pierrot to the door through which she had gone, and which she had closed behind her.

On the floor of the cabin Nepeese dropped on her knees and finished unwrapping the blanket. She was not afraid of Baree. She had forgotten McTaggart. And then, as Baree rolled in a limp heap on the floor, she saw his half-closed eyes and the dry blood on his jaws, and the light left her face as swiftly as the sun is shadowed by a cloud.

"Baree," she cried softly. "Baree—Baree!"

The voice of the Willow thrilled Baree. It seemed to stir the sluggish blood in his veins, and he opened his eyes wider and saw again the wonderful stars that had glowed at him so softly the day of Wakayoo's death. One of the Willow's long braids fell over her shoulder, and she smelled again the sweet scent of her hair as her hand caressed him and her voice talked to him. Then she got up suddenly and left him, and he did not move while he waited for her. In a moment she was back with a basin of water and a cloth. Gently she washed the blood from his eyes and mouth. And still Baree made no move. He scarcely breathed. But Nepeese saw the little quivers that shot through his body when her hand touched him like electric shocks.

"He beat you with a club," she was saying, her dark eyes within a foot of Baree's. "He beat you! That man-beast!"

There came an interruption. The door opened, and the man-beast stood looking down on them, a grin on his red face. Instantly Baree showed that he was alive. He sprang back from under the Willow's hand with a sudden snarl and faced McTaggart. The hair of his spine stood up like a brush; his fangs gleamed menacingly, and his eyes burned like living coals.

"There is a devil in him," said McTaggart. "He is wild—born of the wolf. You must be careful or he will take off a hand, ka sakahet!" It was the first time he had called her that lover's name in Cree—sweetheart! Her heart pounded. She bent her head for a moment over her clenched hands, and McTaggart—looking down on what he thought was her confusion—laid his hand caressingly on her hair. From the door Pierrot had heard the word, and now he saw the caress, and he raised a hand as if to shut out the sight of a sacrilege.

"Mon Dieu!" he breathed.

In the next instant he had given a sharp cry of wonder that mingled with a sudden yell of pain from McTaggart. Like a flash Baree had darted across the floor and fastened his teeth in the Factor's leg. They had bitten deep before McTaggart freed himself with a powerful kick. With an oath he snatched his revolver from its holster. The Willow was ahead of him. With a little cry she darted to Baree and caught him in her arms. As she looked up at McTaggart, her soft, bare throat was within a few inches of Baree's naked fangs. Her eyes blazed.

"You beat him!" she cried. "He hates you—hates you—"

"Let him go!" called Pierrot in an agony of fear. "Mon Dieu! I say let him go or he will tear the life from you!"

"He hates you—hates you—hates you—" the Willow was repeating over and over again to McTaggart's startled face. Then suddenly she turned to her father. "No, he will not tear the life from me," she cried. "See! It is Baree. Did I not tell you that? It is Baree!"

Is it not proof that he defended me?"

"From me!" gasped McTaggart, his face darkening.

Pierrot advanced and laid a hand on McTaggart's arm. He was smiling. "Let us leave them to fight it out between themselves, m'sieu," he said. "They are two little firebrands, and we are not safe. If she is bitten—"

He shrugged his shoulders. A great load had been lifted from them suddenly. His voice was soft and persuasive. And now the anger had gone out of the Willow's face. A coquetish uplift of her eyes caught McTaggart, and she looked straight at him, half smiling, as she spoke to her father:

"I will join you soon, mon pere—you and M'sieu the Factor from Lac Bain!"

There were undeniable little devils in her eyes, McTaggart thought—little devils laughing full at him as she spoke, setting his brain a-fire and his blood to running wildly. Those eyes—full of dancing witches! How he would tame them and play with them—very soon now. He followed Pierrot outside. In his exultation he no longer felt the smart of Baree's teeth.

"I will show you my new carole that I have made for winter, m'sieu," said Pierrot as the door closed behind them.

Half an hour later Nepeese came out of the cabin. McTaggart's jaws were set, but his eyes flared up with pleasure when he saw her. She knew what it was about. The Factor from Lac Bain had been demanding his answer of Pierrot, and Pierrot had been telling him what she had insisted upon—that he must come to her. And he was coming! She turned with a quick beating of the heart and hurried down a little path. She heard McTaggart's footsteps behind her, and threw the flash of a smile over her shoulder. But her teeth were set tight. The nails of her fingers were cutting into the palms of her hands.

Pierrot stood without moving. He watched them as they disappeared into the edge of the forest. Nepeese still ahead of McTaggart. Out of his breast rose a sharp breath.

"Par les mille cornes du diable!" he swore softly. "Is it possible—that she smiles from her heart at that beast? Non! It is impossible. And yet—if it is so—"

One of his brown hands tightened convulsively about the handle of the knife in his belt, and slowly he began to follow them.

McTaggart did not hurry to overtake Nepeese. She was following the narrow path deeper into the forest, and he was glad of that. They would be alone—away from Pierrot. He was satisfied to let her go on. When she turned from the narrow trail into a side path that scarcely bore the mark of travel, his heart gave an exultant jump. If he kept on, he would very soon have her alone—a good distance from the cabin. The blood ran hot in his face. He did not speak to her, through fear that she would stop. Ahead of them he heard the rumble of water. It was the creek running through the chasm.

Nepeese was making straight for that sound. With a little laugh she started to run, and when she stood at the edge of the chasm, McTaggart was fully fifty yards behind her. Twenty feet sheer down there was a deep pool between the rock walls, a pool so deep that it was like blue ink. She turned to face the Factor from Lac Bain. He had never looked more like a red beast to her. Until this moment she had been afraid. But now—in an instant—she terrified her. Before she could speak what she had planned to say, he was at her side, and had taken her face between his two great hands, his coarse fingers twining in the silken strands of her thick braids where they fell over her shoulders at the neck.

"Ka sakahet!" he cried passionately. "Pierrot said you would have an answer for me. But I need no answer now. You are mine! Mine!"

She gave a cry. It was a gasping, broken cry. His arms were about her like hands of iron, crushing her slender body, shutting off her breath, turning the world almost black for her. She could neither struggle nor cry out. She felt the hot passion of his lips on her face, heard his voice—and then came a moment's freedom, and air into her strangled lungs. Pierrot was calling! He had come to the fork in the trail, and he was calling the Willow's name!

McTaggart's hot hand came over her mouth.

"Don't answer," she heard him say. Strength—anger—hatred flared up in her, and fiercely she struck the hand down. Something in her wonderful eyes held McTaggart. They blazed into his very soul.

"Bete noir!" she panted at him, freeing herself from the last touch of his hands. "Beast—black beast!" Her voice trembled, and her face flamed. "See—I came to show you my pool—and tell you what you wanted to hear—and you—you have crushed me like a beast—like a great rock. See! down there—it is my pool!"

She had not planned it like this. She had intended to be smiling, even laughing. In this moment, But McTaggart had spoiled them—her carefully made plans! And yet, as she pointed, the Factor from Lac Bain looked for an instant over the edge of the chasm. And then she laughed as she gave him a sudden shove from behind.

"And that is my answer, M'sieu le Facteur from Lac Bain!" she cried tauntingly as he plunged headlong into the deep pool between the rock walls.

From the edge of the open Pierrot saw what had happened and he gave a great gasp. He drew back among the balsams. This was not a moment for him to show himself. While his heart drummed like a hammer, his face was filled with joy.

On her hands and knees the Willow was peering over the edge. Bush McTaggart had disappeared. He had gone down like the great old he was: the water of her pool had closed over him with a dull splash that was like a chuckle of triumph. He appeared now, beating out with his arms and legs to keep himself afloat, while the Willow's voice came to him in taunting cries.

"Bete noir! Bete noir! Beast! Beast!"

She flung small sticks and tufts of earth down at him fiercely; and McTaggart, looking up as he gained his equilibrium, saw her leaning so far over that she seemed about to fall. Her long braids hung down into the chasm, gleaming in the sun; her eyes were laughing while her lips taunted him; he could see the flash of her white teeth.

"Beast! Beast!"

He began swimming, still looking up at her. It was a hundred yards down the slow-going current to the beach of shale where he could climb out, and a half of that distance she followed him, laughing and taunting him, and flinging down sticks and pebbles. He noted that none of the sticks or stones was large enough to hurt him. When at last his feet touched bottom, she was gone.

Swiftly Nepeese ran back over the trail, and almost into Pierrot's arms. She was panting and laughing when for a moment she stopped.

"I have given him the answer, Noot-aw! He is in the pool!"

Into the balsams she disappeared like a bird. Pierrot made no effort to stop her or to follow.

"Tonnerre de Dieu!" he chuckled—and cut straight across for the other trail.

Nepeese was out of breath when she reached the cabin. Baree, fastened to a table-leg by a babiche thong, heard her pause for a moment at the door. Then she entered and came straight to him. During the half-hour of her absence Baree had scarcely moved. That half-hour, and the few minutes that had preceded it, had made tremendous impressions upon him. Nature, heredity, and instinct were at work, clashing and readjusting, impinging on him a new intelligence—the beginning of a new understanding. A swift and savage impulse had made him leap at Bush McTaggart when the Factor put his hand on the Willow's head. It was not reason. It was the dog—and woman.

And here again it was the woman. She had called to the great hidden passion that was in Baree and that had come to him from Kazan. Of all the living things in the world, he knew that he must not hurt this creature that appeared to him through the door. He trembled as she knelt before him again, and up through the years came the wild and glorious surge of Kazan's blood, overwhelming his birth—and with his head flat on the floor he whined softly, and wagged his tail.

Nepeese gave a cry of joy.

"Baree!" she whispered, taking his head in her hands. "Baree!"

Her touch thrilled him. It sent little thrills through his body, a tremulous quivering which she could feel and which deepened the glow in her eyes. Gently her hand stroked his head and his back. It seemed to Nepeese that he did not breathe. Under the caress of her hand his eyes closed. In another moment she was talking to him, and at the sound of her voice his eyes shot open.

"He will come here—that beast—and he will kill us," she was saying. "He will kill you because you bit him, Baree. Ugh, I wish you were bigger, and stronger, so that you could take off his head for me!"

She was untangling the babiche from about the table-leg, and under her breath she laughed. She was not frightened. It was a tremendous adventure—and she thrilled with exultation at the thought of having beaten the man-beast in her own way. She could see him in the pool struggling and beating about like a great fish. He was just about crawling out of the chasm now—and she laughed again as she caught Baree up under her arm.

"Oh—oopt-nao—but you are heavy!" she gasped. "And yet I must carry you—because I am going to run!"

She hurried outside. Pierrot had not come, and she darted swiftly into the balsams back of the cabin, with Baree hung in the crook of her arm, like a sack filled at both ends and tied in the middle. He felt like that, too. But he still had no inclination to wriggle himself free. Nepeese ran with him until her arm ached. Then she stopped and put him down on his feet, holding to the end of the caribou-skin thong that was tied about his neck. And then the Willow spoke to him softly.

"You are not going to run away, Baree. Non, you are going to stay with me, and we will kill that man-beast if he dares do to me again what he did back there." She flung back the loose hair from about her flushed face, and for a moment she forgot Baree as she thought of that half minute at the edge of the chasm. He was looking straight up at her when her glance fell on him again. "Non, you are not going to run away—you are going to follow me," she whispered. "Come."

The babiche string tightened about Baree's neck as she urged him to follow. It was like another rabbit-snare, and he braced his forefeet and bared his fangs just a little. The Willow did not pull. Fearlessly she put her hand on his head again. From the direction of the cabin came a shout, and at the sound of it she took Baree up under her arm once more.

"Bete noir—bete noir!" she called back tauntingly, but only loud enough to be heard a few yards away. "Go back to Lac Bain—owases—you wild beast!"

Nepeese began to make her way swiftly through the forest. It grew deeper and darker, and there were no trails. They came at last into an open. It was a tiny meadow in the heart of the forest, not more than three or four times as big as the cabin; underfoot the grass was soft and green, and thick with flowers. Straight through the heart of this little oasis trickled a streamlet across which the Willow jumped with Baree under her arm, and on the edge of the will was a small wigwam made of freshly cut spruce and balsam boughs. Into her diminutive meadow the Willow thrust her head to see that things were as she had left them yesterday. Then, with a long breath of relief, she put down her four-legged burden and fastened the end of the babiche to one of the cut spruce limbs.

Baree burrowed himself back into the wall of the wigwam, and with head alert—and eyes wide open—watched attentively what happened after this. Not a movement of the Willow escaped him. She was radiant—and happy. Her laugh, sweet and wild as a bird's trill, set Baree's heart throbbing with a desire to jump about with her among the flowers.

For a time Nepeese seemed to forget Baree. Her wild blood raced with the joy of her triumph over the Factor from Lac Bain. She saw him again, floundering about in the pool—plastered him at the cabin now, soaked and angry, demanding of taon pere where she had gone. And mon pere, with a shrug of his shoulders, was telling him that he didn't know—that probably she had run into the forest. It did not enter into her head that in striking Bush McTaggart in that way she had played with dynamite. She did not foresee the peril that in an instant would have stamped the wild flush from her face and curdled the blood in her veins—did not guess that McTaggart had become for her a deadlier menace than ever.

Various Heating Methods

The ancients used stoves which contained the fire, as the German stoves yet do. Rooms were also warmed by portable braziers. In England heating was secured by fire in an open grate and this method is still in common use, although it results in a great waste of fuel.

A LETTER FROM GOVERNOR OF SOUTH CAROLINA

Thomas G. McLeod, governor of the state of South Carolina, in a letter to T. F. Marston, secretary treasurer of the East Michigan Tourist association, says:

"Should the Governors' Conference meet at Mackinac Island, I feel sure I will enjoy my visit to that historic spot."

Governor McLeod's letter was one of thanks for a copy of the E. M. T. 1925 magazine, which he says contained many beautiful views and was very interesting.

East Michigan Tourist association literature was sent to the governors of every state in the union in an effort to influence them in selecting Mackinac Island as the meeting place for their annual conference. Indications are now that the feminine persuasions of the woman governor of Wyoming have prevailed in the selection of Wyoming as the place for the Governor's Conference.

E. M. T. ADVERTISING IN MAY PUBLICATIONS

National advertising of the East Michigan Tourist association was definitely expanded May 1. Among the monthly literary magazines, which carried E. M. T. advertising were Atlantic Monthly, Harpers, Review of Reviews, Scribner's, The Golden Book, World's Work and Country Life. A half column advertisement appeared in the May 8 issue of Liberty, which has a circulation of more than one million. The Ohio Motorist, official organ of the Cleveland Automobile club, also carried an advertisement in its May issue and an article with illustrations depicting scenes in East Michigan. Five different outdoor magazines—Sportlife, Outdoor Recreation, Outdoor America, Field and Stream and Forest and Stream—also carried E. M. T. advertisements in their May issues.

HOT UNDER THE COLLAR

(By E. M. T. Service)

It's a good thing to keep calm under stress of provoking circumstances. Yet there's a type of citizen who merits sympathy when he gets "hot under the collar." It's the man who keeps his property, fencing, lawns and buildings in order, who detests slovenliness and rubbish and who works to keep his place in ship-shape, but has a neighbor who does not care how things look. It's like hitching a thoroughbred Derby winner with a plow horse—they don't travel alike. The man or family that has unkempt property in Michigan is hurting the game. Eastern Michigan has become one of the show places of North America—in summer. People travel across states to get among us, and leave their dollars with us. When they drop into a village or community that is unsightly and unkempt they are either disappointed or disgusted. The man or family whose property and roadsides are orderly and well kept isn't at fault. It's that dirty neighbor of his that's shoeing away the town's chances for prosperity. He's killing the town, by inches. Why not appoint a jury of citizens to wait upon this guy and ask him what it is about the town that he wants to murder it. A rake, a bon-fire, a bucket of paint, a bit of digging, a flower box and a few lilacs, maybe a rose-bush or two—these are the town's "beauty shops" that everybody should patronize. People steer clear of a town that looks as though it had "no bringing up."

Wouldn't Captain Kidd have fun with all these rum fleets sailing the Spanish Main.

Over 3,000 cities and towns have streets paved with portland cement concrete

Grand Haven's Concrete Streets No Surprise to Tourists

Tourists motor quickly and safely over the fine concrete highway connecting Grand Rapids and Grand Haven, the center of Michigan's famous fruit and berry belt.

These tourists are not surprised to see many of Grand Haven's streets paved with concrete. That is their common experience in hundreds of fast-growing cities throughout the country. They find that more and more of these cities are extending their yardage of this sturdy, good-looking pavement.

Grand Haven during the past fourteen years has laid over nineteen miles of concrete streets. These include prominent thoroughfares in both business and residential districts, and they are all in tip-top shape.

Naturally such service has met with praise from Grand Haven property owners. This service is all the more appreciated because maintenance—as always the case with concrete streets—has been so extremely low.

Many other Michigan cities are having the same happy experience with concrete streets as Grand Haven is having—and has had for fourteen years.

MANY SOURCES OF INCOME BEST

Diversified farming with many sources of income provides greatest profit

Based on Wis. College of Agriculture—USA Survey made during period of agricultural depression

1 Source of Income	3 Sources of Income	6 Sources of Income
$415 Farm Income	$790 Farm Income	$1504 Farm Income

DIVERSIFIED farming, with many sources of income, provides the greatest profit, according to the Blue Valley Creamery Institute, which has completed a study of farm income data obtained on 262 farms by investigators of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture. Farms with six sources of income had an average yearly income of $1,504; those with three, $790, while those farmers who were dependent upon only one source of income made less than $500. The big lesson to be gained from this study, the Institute explains, is that the farmer who raises products of many kinds makes a living and a reasonable profit, while the one who depends upon a single kind of animal or crop has only a single source of income and small profits for a year's work.

TIRE DEALERS

Serve You Better

We Are Tire Specialists

Our experience and equipment help you get the most mileage, comfort and safety from tires.

Gum-Dipping—the only known method of insulating every fiber of every cord with rubber—gives the strongest construction possible. And the special Steam-Welding process makes Firestone tubes both leak-proof and long-wearing—further increasing the life of the tire.

We Also Sell and Service Oldfield Tires and Tubes

These well-known tires are built in the economical Oldfield factories and carry the standard guarantee. We offer them at these low prices.

HIGH PRESSURE CORDS
30x3 1/2 Regular Cl.	$10.25
30x3 1/2 Extra Size Cl.	11.40
30x3 1/2 Extra Size S.S.	14.00
31x4 S.S.	18.00
32x4 S.S.	19.20
32x4 1/2 S.S.	23.70
33x4 1/2 S.S.	24.75
33x5 S.S.	31.50

OVER-SIZE BALLOONS

30x4.95	18.55
31x5.25	21.95
32x6.00	25.15

The proof is demonstrated by the biggest taxicab and bus fleets—by race champions and in everyday service of hundreds of thousands of motorists.

Let us see that your tires are properly mounted, inflated and cared for.

We repair your tires, when necessary, by the new and better Firestone method.

Equip your car with these famous Gum-Dipped Cords and Steam-Welded Tubes. We will take your old tires in trade, giving you liberal allowance for unused mileage.

The home of Truman Ingram was badly damaged Sunday night in a fire, the origin of which has not been ascertained. Mr. and Mrs. Ingram had been away from home all day, having motored to Rose City, and did not return home until Monday morning. The fire was discovered about 12:30 o'clock and before the fire department arrived had gained quite a headway. However, when they did get started they made quick work of it and soon had the conflagration under control, but not until a great deal of damage had been done to both house and contents. The loss is estimated at about $2,000, partly covered by insurance.

Next Monday night the township board of Grayling township will go to the Feldhauser school house for the purpose of holding a mass meeting with the property owners of school districts Nos. 3, 4 and 5. Petitions are on file with the board, asking that certain parcels of property be transferred to another district. At present the school attendance in these districts is low and besides all the present school buildings are not in good condition and should be improved. Therefore, it is believed that the property owners in these districts may possibly favor consolidation of school districts. It is the intention of the township board to endeavor and ascertain the wishes of the people living in these districts and carry them out as nearly as possible.

MARGARET TEMPLE SMITH WRITES CLUB WOMEN

Mrs. Margaret Temple Smith, Bay City, past president of the North-eastern district of Michigan Federation of Women's clubs, who was in attendance at the meeting held here last week, has written a letter of greeting and appreciation to the club women of Grayling. The letter reads as follows:

Bay City, May 15.

My dear club friends: Once again we have had the great pleasure of looking into each other's faces and clasp hands. Each district meeting is just a little better in some way. I love the Northwestern district dearly with its fine, noble women and wonderful youth, both boys and girls.

You, of Grayling, are blessed with two out-standing beauty spots—the Hanson state military reservation, where our boys are trained to love country and our flag that never falls, but carries on to victory and the Hanson pines. I love trees like hu-

MRS. CONRAD SORENSON PASSED AWAY SUDDENLY

The sudden death of Mrs. Conrad Sorenson at Grayling Mercy hospital last Thursday afternoon was a shock to her family and friends. Mrs. Sorenson had been ailing for some time and a few weeks ago underwent an operation, and she was getting along so nicely that it was expected she would be able to leave the hospital the last of the week.

The funeral was held Sunday afternoon with services at the home of the deceased's daughter, Mrs. Clifford Chappel, Rev. J. Herman Baughn of the Michelson Memorial church conducting the service. There was a large congregation of relatives and friends in attendance, among whom were the following from out-of-town: Mr. and Mrs. Shirlaw Dyer of Benton Harbor, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dyer of Lansing, Edgar Dyer, Detroit, Clyde Dyer, Flint and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Liphard of Midland.

Angeline Dechetter was born in Toledo, Ohio, March 4, 1876. When she was 14 years old she came to Grayling with her parents and has since resided here. In the year 1894 she was united in marriage to Allan Dyer and to the union seven children were born, all of whom survive and are known as Shirlaw, Robert, Edgar and Clyde Dyer and Mrs. Beulah Liphard, who reside out of the city, Mrs. Ruth Chappel and Mrs. Ruby Chappel of Grayling. Mr. Dyer passed away in 1915 and some time later Mrs. Dyer was again wed, this time to Conrad Sorenson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Sorenson of this city, and he with one daughter Loretta also survives. Mrs. Sorenson was a loving mother and reared her fine large family kindly and well. She loved her home and seldom was known to leave it. Her friends were numbered among the young and old alike.

Besides her husband and children, the deceased is also survived by five sisters, Mrs. Maggie Drake, Manistee, Mrs. Stella Fritz, Maple City, Mrs. Libbie Frank, Jackson, Mrs. Anna Daniels, Mrs. Ida Hazard, and one brother, Charles Dechetter of Stuben, Mich.

FREDERIC ITEMS

Jay O'Dell has returned from a business trip to Mt. Pleasant.

Albert Lewis inspected the gravel plant last week and has reported everything running good.

The county road west of town will be completed within the next few days. It was passed by inspectors as being one of the best roads in the country. It was under the management of F. A. Goshorn.

Attorney John Procter of Big Rapids was in town on legal business last week.

C. S. Barber is helping superintend the road building this summer.

Wm. Cox is kept busy buckamining and working his farm, building fence, etc.

Rev. Crandell delivered a great message Sunday night. Those who were not there certainly missed something good.

Our prayers and sympathy are with Mrs. John Ensign while she is in the hospital at Grayling.

We were glad to see Mrs. Charles Horton to church Sunday.

Erve Roe, highway commissioner and John Garret, master mechanic are sure crushing out some good road material. Elroy Barber is official teamster and John Hyland is chief engineer.

E. A. Corsaut has improved the looks of his town property by remodeling his garage. "Look out for taxes," Elmer.

George Sheldon is out of town looking for work.

John Parson has discontinued his restaurant.

J. W. Payne has made some wonderful improvements on his home here.

N. J. Fisher is very busy with his truck. He is figuring on getting a larger one.

IT'S EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS

(By E. M. T. Service)
About the first thing that a child learns to lip after it can say "mama," is "It's none of your business." This seems to stick for life. Years ago when a man with smallpox walked down town he thought it was no one's business that he had a communicable disease. Then the town got smallpox. Slowly the town learned that it really was other people's business—and they passed the quarantine law. In cities people used to build fire-trap houses and theaters. It was "nobody's business." Then forty were burned to death because they couldn't get out. It became somebody else's business. They required adequate exits, doors that swung outward. If summer visitors to East Michigan want to come into our town and spend money, and some of our citizens have repelling, littered, unkempt and unsightly property, it's everybody's business. The whole town has a just right to complain. Everybody is losing money. He may not be wealthy enough to make a palace with a fence of gold, but he can use a rake, he can plant shrubbery, get rid of rubbish, and be a better citizen for it. Some day the merchants association will refuse to extend him credit unless his home surroundings denote that he has a healthy mind, a progressive disposition, and is honest with himself and his house and yard. What each of us do is of vital importance to all the rest. It's everybody's business.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank all those who so kindly assisted us, for the beautiful floral offerings and the many comforting words during the illness and death of our mother and grandmother.
Mr. and Mrs. Heldemann and family.

BOTH WRONG

A dispute arose between two old ladies as to the name of the music the band was playing. Said the first: "It's the Overture from 'The Mastering of Lohengrin' when I hear it."

"Rubbish!" declared the second. "I should think I know the Prelude from 'Lohengrin' when I hear it." As neither would give in, No. 1 consulted a notice board. "We're both wrong," she announced on returning. "It's 'Refrain From Spitting.'"

OF COURSE

Mother—Bobby, this note from your teacher says you're the last boy in a class of twenty-five.

Bobby—Well, it could be worse. Mother—I don't see how.

Bobby—I would be in a bigger class.

Diversified Flashes

I held a flash last evening. And this evening, by her grace, I'm holding a very pretty girl—With a flash upon her face!

Cramped

Nervous Man (after jolt)—What's the matter with you? You keep trying to run the elevator through the roof.

Elevator Boy (fresh from New York)—Sorry, sir! You see I'm not used to these little eighteen-story buildings.

Banditry

He—The people who run this ten-room are awful robbers.

She—Yes?

He—Awful. One night we sat here two hours without ever getting served and they charged us 50 cents for parking—Penn State Froth.

Mutual Feelings

He (passionately)—I tell you my love for you is making me mad—mad—mad!

She (calmly)—Well, keep quiet about it. It's had the same effect on my father.—Answers.

A HABIT THAT STICKS

"She's addicted to the chewing gum habit, isn't she?"

"Yes; it seems to stick to her some how."

They Should Worry

The doctors all declare That girls are far from wise When they let rouge bat for Good, healthy exercise.

Why the Roast Is Burnt

"Friday is always our cook's off day."

"You mean her day off, don't you?"

"No; Thursday is her day off. That's why Friday is her off day."

Just Like the First Ponce

"When I was at the Ponce de Leon in Florida they had a sign out, 'Youth Wanted.'"

"The Ponce de Leon! A case of his lary repeating itself, eh?"

Please

Absent-Minded Clerk—Was there something for you, madam?

Madam—No, nothing.

The Dumb One—Shall I wrap it?

Under-Dressed

Mother—You are very scantily clad in that ball dress!

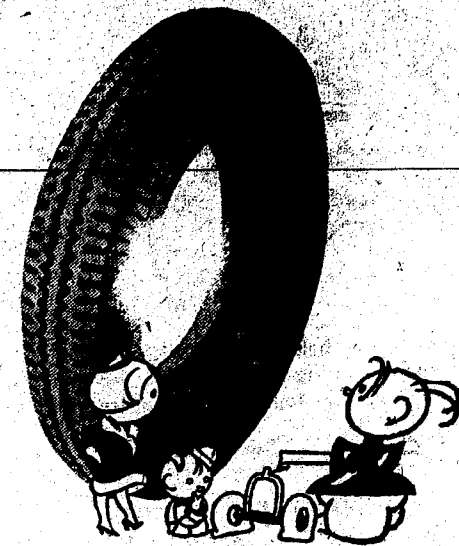

Daughter—But I haven't put my necklaces on yet!

Demonstrated

Judge—Why did you kick this man? Accused—Because he called me a male!

A Canadian senator returning from Europe blames the Geneva unpleasantness on the newspaper correspondents, who he says, wrote too much "stuff." Evidently he believes in the old slogan that what people don't know won't hurt 'em.

Some newspapers are complaining because there is going to be a big surplus in the treasury after the tax cut. But did you hear of any unexpected surpluses happening along in a Democratic administration?

NO PARKING RESTRICTIONS FOR TOURISTS IN BAY CITY

Tourists stopping at or passing through Bay City this summer will not be bothered with time limits on parking. The Bay City Chamber of Commerce will have printed for distribution yellow tags to be attached to the steering wheels of visiting motorists. The tags will be distributed by the police, hotels and business men. Placards will also be printed advising the visitors from outside the county to request the tags. Tags will be signed by the chief of police. Chief of Police Davis has instructed his officers on the advantages of friendliness and courtesy to the tourists.

REVOLUTIONISTS WOULD OVERTHROW R. O. T. C.

Reserve officers of Michigan are congratulating W. Frank James, congressman of Michigan on his stand on the military training in schools and colleges in order to get for this country an adequate preparedness that is in accordance with the National Defense Act, as amended by the Congress of the United States on June 4, 1920. This national defense act is the only military policy the United States has ever had, and it will save this country millions of dollars and thousands of lives in case of another major emergency. Congressman W. Frank James as a member of the military affairs committee cross-examined the witnesses who appeared before his committee in favor of a bill prohibiting compulsory military training in other than military schools. This is a direct effort to kill the R. O. T. C. in the schools and colleges in this country, and a direct blow at the Reserves of this country who constitute the civilian and third component of the Army of the United States. With the Reserves it is possible for this country to maintain its national defense policy without a large regular army, and those who are preaching revolution and overthrow of the government are now attacking the R. O. T. C. in the schools and colleges in an effort to wreck the Reserve component of the Army. Professor William Bradley Otis of the New York City College, declared in reply to a question by Congressman James that he would rather have his son go to Leavenworth than accept military training under compulsion. It's a good bet that if Uncle Sam had decided to attend that conference in Geneva in September to discuss the World Court reservation he would have come back clad only in his bathing suit.
